DEAF AWARENESS WEEK

December 1-5, has been proclaimed "Deaf Awareness Week" in the District of Columbia. The week's activities have been designated official Bicentennial observances of the city.

A program, "The Bicentennial History of the Deaf," will be held at 10 a.m., December 2, in the main lobby of the Martin Luther King Memorial Library, 901 G Street, N.W. Frederick Schreiber will be the main speaker.

During the week there will be displays on the history of the deaf developed from materials loaned by Gallaudet and the Alexander Graham Bell Association. Gallaudet will also have a large display in the main window of the library. Other organizations will be exhibiting their literature and items of interest.

A workshop for public librarians in the Washington area will be held on December 4, with the objective of creating a new public library image for the deaf community.

Other activities will include captioned films and tours of the library. For additional information contact Alice Hagemeyer at 727-CALL (TTY or voice).

PLEASE NOTE

We were mistaken! Last week we passed on information concerning the Combined Federal Campaign and mentioned that contributions could be designated for the National Health Care Foundation for the Deaf. Unfortunately, the Center is not a member organization. We are sorry about the confusion.

WASHINGTON HOSTS ASHA CONVENTION

The American Speech and Hearing Association is holding its convention in Washington, November 21-24, at the Sheraton Park Hotel. A number of Gallaudet people will be making presentations at the scientific sessions.

Ellen Danaher and Mary Pat Wilson will present a paper on the speech-sound discrimination of hearing impaired persons. Ellen Danaher and James Pickett are giving a seminar on their research in the Sensory Communication Research Lab, and Sally Revoile is presenting results of a survey of users' satisfaction with hearing aids. Henry Tobin will present a scientific exhibit, "Programming for Audiologic Habilitation." Many faculty and staff people from the Department of Audiology and Speech have been doing extensive volunteer and committee work for the convention.

Tour programs of Gallaudet College have been planned for November 21 and 24, for ASHA convention participants.
